CONSENT TO AUDIO RECORD PATIENT VISITS

Rocky Mountain Senior Care medical providers feel it is important to spend time with our patients. As much is possible, we prefer to be in the presence of our patients rather than to spend our time typing notes into a computer. Our electronic medical record system allows us to audio record visits for future reference, thus minimizing the time your provider spends typing chart notes.

With that objective in mind, I give my Rocky Mountain Senior Care provider consent to audio record my medical visits.

CONSENT TO PHOTOGRAPH

Clinical photography of patients may be appropriate for the diagnosis and treatment of medical conditions. Clinical photography can be accomplished through a variety of multimedia technology to collect, analyze, and store patient protected health information. Use of these medias will be carefully controlled and executed in compliance with all state and federal regulations as well as other organizational policies and procedures.

Requests for external disclosures of clinical photography that are not for treatment, payment, or operations requires the patient's specific informed consent prior to the release. Examples or external disclosures requiring authorization include, but are not limited to:

- Requests by law enforcement
- Requests by social services
- Requests for marketing
- Requests for medical publication

I understand that this authorization is valid until I give written notification to withdraw my consent.
